Marble is a type of soft and sparkling natural rock that consists mainly of calcite (calcium carbonate). The marble is a marble rock and is characterised by its beautiful and elegant appearance. Marble is a popular and common material in many decorative and architectural applications because of its many features, and the most prominent of these features are:

- 1. High Aesthetic: The marble is characterised by its elegant and beautiful appearance, and it has a great variety of colours, utensils and stereotypes.
- 2. Artistic value: Marble is a luxurious and refined material that adds a touch of luxury and sophistication to any place it is used.
- 3. Durability: Despite its smoothness, the marble has good durability and the ability to resist scratches and corrosion.
- 4. Easy to clean: Simple marble is easy to clean and maintain with gentle cleaning materials.
- 5. Long-term durability: In general, marble is a long-lasting material if well taken care of.
- 6. Investment value: Marble is a good investment because it maximises the value of housing and buildings and is an attractive source for the property.

These features make marble a popular choice for use in interior and exterior decorations, and can be used in floors, walls, bathrooms, kitchens, entrances, statues and other decorative and architectural applications.
